Before entering the water, he removed his sandals and left them on the shoreline. While approximately waist deep in the ocean, preparing to surf, an unknown male approached him and began to shout profanities at him. responded verbally and they began to approach each other. When they were within a few feet of each other, the unknown male raised his fist and took a step towards backed away from the man, and the unknown male dropped his fist and swam away. The man never swung or made a motion to hit After the incident, contacted the PVEPD (See DR# 15-08865 for further information) and relayed the incident to Dispatch, fearing the man would vandalize his vehicle.

At approximately 0730 hours, left the water and saw that his sandals were no longer where he left them. He searched the area but was unable to find them. believed the sandals were stolen. He did not see anyone take his sandals. He estimated his sandals to have cost approximately $35.

At approximately 0745 hours, returned to his vehicle parked along the top of the cliff. He saw muddy footprints in three separate spots on the exterior of his vehicle, as if it had been kicked. In one area, near the driver side rear of the vehicle, there was a small dent where a footprint had been left. told me the dent was not there when he parked his car. estimated it would cost him $200 to fix the dent. did not see anyone commit the crime, but suspects the unknown male he had an altercation with earlier was responsible for the theft and damage mentioned above. believes these acts were committed to intimidate him. is desirous of prosecution if a suspect is located.
